Art Unit: 2879

1. Applicant's arguments filed 09/13/2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Kawamura et al ('321, of record).

Kawamura et al disclose applicant's claimed CRT (see Figures 1, 2) including a flat panel (1), a funnel having a neck and an opening, an electron gun (7), a deflection yoke (9), a shadow mask (6), wherein the panel includes a flatly configured outer (front) surface (11) and an inner surface (the surface that is adjacent to a phosphor layer 10) having a non-spherical, convexly curved configuration relative to the outer surface. Since Kawamura et al disclose the CRT including structure as claimed by applicant, Kawamura et al's CRT would inherently satisfy applicant's claimed formula of  $Y1 \leq Y2$ , (wherein Y1 represents a vertical distance between the outer surface and a reflected screen image on a central axis of the panel, and Y2 represents a vertical distance between the outer surface and the refracted screen image in peripheral areas other than the central axis of the panel).

As to the newly added functional limitation "a glass having a transmission ratio of 60% or more", it is narrative in form and therefore does not carry any patentable weight. In order to be given patentable weight, a functional recitation must be expresses a "means" for performing the specified function, as set forth in 35 U.S.C. 6th paragraph, and must be supported by recitation in the claim of sufficient structure to warrant the presence of the functional language. In re fuller, 1929 C.D. 172: 388 O.G. 279.

Consequently, Kawamura anticipate applicant's claims 1 and 3.

4. Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Makoto (JP '710, of record).

Makoto et al disclose applicant's claimed CRT (see all drawing Figures) including a flat panel, a funnel having a neck and an opening, an electron gun, a deflection yoke, a shadow mask, wherein the panel includes a flatly configured outer (front) surface (11) and an inner surface (2) having a non-spherical, convexly curved configuration relative to the outer surface which would inherently satisfying applicant's claimed formula of  $Y1 \leq Y2$ , wherein Y1 represents a vertical distance between the outer surface and a reflected screen image on a central axis of the panel, and Y2 represents a vertical distance between the outer surface and the refracted screen image in peripheral areas other than the central axis of the panel.

The newly added functional limitation "a glass having a transmission ratio of 60% or more", is again not given a patentable weight for reasons set forth in the previous paragraph.

5. Applicant has repeated same arguments, which was presented earlier on 06/29/2004. The Examiner has indicated in the previous office action (Advisory action, mailed on 08/11/2004) that applicant's arguments are not found persuasive.

Applicants argue that Kawamura et al (or Makoto) reference fails to provide a transmission ratio of 60% or more. This is not found persuasive. Since applicant's claimed structure is not distinguishable from that of Kawamura et al (or Makoto), i.e. since applicant's claimed structure is fully disclosed by Kawamura et al (or Makoto), the CRT of Kawamura et al (or Makoto) would inherently be able to provide a transmission ratio of 60% or more.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

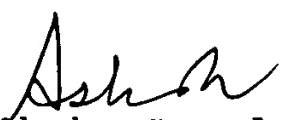

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
